APPRECIATIONS-

MR. HALE’S 4th HOUR CLASS: Mr. Hale would like to appreciate his entire 4th hour for taking it upon themselves to take turns volunteering to stay behind class a few minutes to clean up all the cardboard scraps from their STEM project. Almost the entire class has stayed behind at least once to help out. Great job, students!

KYLLIE LAMBERTSEN: Ms. Worthley wants to extend an appreciation to Kyllie for her demonstration of The Wolverine Way. Kyllie saw that Ms. Worthley was struggling to open her door and offered to help. Kyllie is not one of Ms. Worthley’s students and doesn’t even know her, so Ms. Worthley thought this was a particularly kind gesture. Way to be, Kyllie!!

DEAN ANDERSON: Ms. Worthley wants to send a big shout out to Dean for running an errand for her. Way to be helpful, Dean!!

AVALON PRESHER: Mrs. Panike wants to recognize Avalon for sharing some paper with another student who didn’t have any. Thanks for helping out a fellow classmate, Avalon!

A: Shore

FACT OF THE DAY
When were hurricanes first named?
Forecasters begin using names in 1950. In that year and in 1951, names were from the international phonetic alphabet in use at the time - Able, Baker, Charlie, etc. Female, English-language names were used beginning in 1953. Alternating male and female names were first used to name Atlantic Basin hurricanes in 1979.
